M. Smith in the Character of Alexander.

Hence from my Sight. Act V. Scene 1.

Publisha by J. Harrison, Juny 1779.

11

H

D

1

Printer

M. Smith in the Character of Alexander.

Hence from my Sight. Act V. Scene 1.

Publisha by J. Harrison, Juny 1779.

11

H

D

1

Printer

Alexander the Great

Wilten by Sir C. Schoos, Bart. A

TRAGEDY.

As it is Acted at the

HEATRES-ROYAL

Drury-Lane and Covent-Garden.

Written by NATHANIEL LEE, Gent.

Nam spirat tragicum satis, & seliciter audet.

HOR. EPIST. AD AUG.

There is a species walker? DO N: Printed for J. HARRISON, No 18, Paternoster-Row; and Sold, likewise, by J. WENMAN, Fleet-Street; and all other Booksellers.

M DCC LXXIX.

R 0 L

Written by Sir C. Scroop, Bart.

OW bard the fate is of the scribbling drudge, Who writes to all, when yet so few can judge! Wit, like religion once divine was though; And the dull croud believ as they was taught; Now each fanatic fool presumes t'explain The text, and does the facred writ profane: For, while your wits each other's fall pursue, The fops usure the pow'r belongs to you.

You think y' are challeng'd in each new play-ball,

And here you come for trial of your skill.

Where, fencer-like, you one another hurt, While, with your wounds, you make the rabble sport.

Others there are, that have the brutal will.

To murder a poor play, but want the shill.

They love to fight, but seldom have the wit

To spy the place where they may thrust and hit;

And therefore, like some bully of the town, Ne'er fand to draw, but knock the poet down. With these, like bogs in gardens, it succeeds,
They root up all, and know not flow'rs from weeds.
As for you, sparks, that bither come each day,
To ast you all all the coming of plays
Rebearse your usual follies to the pit,
And with loud nonsense drown the stage's wit; Talk of your clothes, your last debauches tell, And witty bargains to each other fell; Glout on the fills she, who, for your sake, Can vanity and noise, for love mistake;
Till the cognition fing in the next lampson;
Is, by her jealous friends, sent out of town:
For in this duelling, intriguing age, The love you make, is like the war you wage; " are fill prevented e'er you come t'engage. But 'tis not to such trissing foes as you,
The mighty Alexander deigns sassue;
Xo Bassian of the pit he does despite,
But to the men of sense for aid he slies;
On their experienc'd arms he now depends,
Nor fears be odds, if they but prove his friending. For as be once a little bandful chofe, The numerous armies of the world t' oppose; So, back'd by you, who understand the rules, He bopes to rout the mighty bost of fools.

SAR.

IL U E OG E.

HATE'ER they mean, yet ought they to be Who this consorious age did polish first: Who the best play, for one poor error blame, As priests against our ladies' arts declaim, And for one patch both foul and body damn. But what does more provoke the afters rage. (For we must show the grievance of the stage)
It, that our women which adorn each play
Bred at our cost, become at length our frey. But when they remellery, first best to you led falls of the SOEN E4 BAHY LON ... But when they remellery, first best to you led falls of the solution ... Fleet-Street; and all other Booksellers.

E. You watch 'em bare and squab, and let 'em rest, But with the first young down you snatch the nest. Pray leave those poaching tilks, if you are wife, E'er we take out our letters of reprize. For ave bave vow'd to find a fort of toys Known to Black Friars, a tribe of chopping boys; If once they come, they'll quickly spail your sport; I here's not one lady will receive your court; Rut for the youth in pettieoats run wild, With, Oh! the archest wag, the sweetest child. The panting breast, white bands, and lily feet, No more spall your pall'd thoughts with pleasure med The doman in boy's clothes, all boy shall be, And never raise your thoughts above the knee. Well, if our women knew bow falfe you are, They wou'd fay bere, and this new trouble spare: Poor fails, they think all gospel you relate, Charm'd with the noise of settling an state: But when at last your appetites are full, And the tir'd Cupid grows, with action, dull; You'll find some trick to cut off the entail,

And send 'em back to us all worn and fiale.

Perhaps they'll find our stage, while they have range To some wile conting conventicle chang d: Where, for the sparks bo once resorted there, Michiteir culf d might bat scentch all the air, They'll see grave blockbeads with sport greafy boir, Green-aprons, steeple-bats, and collar-bands; Dull, fniv'ling roques, that ring, not clap their bands Where, for gay punks that drew the shining crowd, And misses that in vixors laugh'd alond, They'll bear young fifters figb, fee matrons old Torbetr chap diebeets beir publical kenchers bold; Whose zeal too might persuade, in spite to you. Our flying angels to augment their crew; While Farringdon their bero fruts about 'em, And ne or a damning enitic dares to flout'em.

Dramatis Personæ.

ME N.

ALEXANDER the Great. THESTION, Alexander's Favourite. Lysimachus, Prince of the Blood. Cassander, Polyfiechon, Conspirators. PHILIP, THESSALUS, the Median. PERDICCUS, a Commander. EUMENES, ARISTANDER, a Soothfayer. slave.

> 0 M E

ROXANA, first Wife of Alexander. SYSIGAMBIS, Mother of the Royal Family. STATIRA, married to Alexander.

. WEHMAN, Fleet-Street;

SE Rephelti

Put up, Lyf. I Lyf. I Cly. F Hepb. Thou fa

Carle on

Lend it. Lyfimac Lyf. Know, Cly. ! l bar yo Now let

That fi And ou Lyf. Hepb

Cly. No tim Say, w What s Why, By all When

When Clytus Iknew The w Lyf. But kr

Cly. Death Than What

World! they rear Make woll

"State inter bande

ACT indl.-owards

SCENE, the Gardens of Semiramis. Rephetion and Lyfimschus fighting, Clycus parting them

HAT, are you madmen? This a time Put up, I say—Or, by the gods, that form'd me, Be who refuses, makes a for of Clytus.

Lyf. I have his sword.

let 'em reft, atch the neft u are wife,

toys pping boys; your sport; court; ld, A child. ily feet, b pleasure mes li be,

fate:

, dull;

bave rang'

reasy bair, inds; their bands

ing crowd, s old

you,

'em,

cm.

æ.

ly.

ers bold;

ale.

Abore, be air,

be knee. a are, uble spare:

Cly. But must not have his life,

Lif. Must not old Clytus!

Cly. Hair-brain d boy, you must not.

Hepb. Lend me thy fword, thou father of the war, Thou far-fam'd guard of Alexander's life. Curle on this weak, unexecuting arm! Lend it, old Clytus, to redeem my fame; Lysmachus is brave, and else will scorn me. Lys. There, take thy sword; and, since thou'rt bent on death,

Know, 'tis thy glory that thou dy'ft hy me. Cly. Stay thee, Lyumachus: Hepheftion, hold; lbar you both. My body interposed, Now let me fee which of you dares to ficike. By Jove, you've firr'd the old man:—that rash arm That first advances, moves against the gods. And our great king, whose deputy I stand.

Lyf. Some prop ter time must terminate our quarbears.

Cly. Some prop'rer time! 'tis falfe-no hour is

No time should fee a brave man do amile. Say, what's the noble cause of all this madnes? What vast ambition blows the dangerous fire? Why, a vain, fmiling, whining, coz'ning woman : By all my triumphs, in the heat of youth, When towns were fack'd, and beauties proftrate lay, When my blood boil'd, and nature work'd me high, Clytus ne'er bow'd his body to fuch shame; I knew 'em, and defpis'd their cobweb arts. The whole fex is not worth a foldier's thought. Lyf. Our cause of quarrel may to thee seem light;

But know, a less has fet the world in arms. Cly. Yes, Troy, they tell us, by a woman fell; Curle on the fex, they are the bane of virtue! Death! I'd rather this right-arm were loft, Than that the king should hear of your imprudence-

What, on a day thus fet apart for triumph! Lyf. We were, indeed, to blame.

Cy. This memorable day, When our hot mafter, whose impatient foul

Out-rides the fun, and fighs for other worlds To spread his conquests, and diffuse his glory, Now bids the trumper for a while be filent, And plays with monarchs, whom he us'd to drive; Shall we, by broils, awake him into rage, And roule the lion that has ceas'd to your?

wer merits therefore, to my laveor, g'd the king to isterpoor his life, beyond the world ! Kweener

Lyf. Clytus, thou'rt right-Put up thy fword, Hepheltion: Had paffion not eclips'd the light of realon,

Untold we might this confequence have feen

Hepb. Why has not reason power to conquer love? Why are we thus enslav d?

Cly. Because unman'd; Because ye follow Alexander's steps.
Heavens! that a face should thus bewitch his soul, And ruin all that's great and godlike in it! Talk be my bane, yet the old man must talk; Not fo he lov'd, when he at lifus fought, And join'd in mighty combat with Darius Whom, from his chariot, firming all with germs,
He hurl'd to earth, and catch'd the imperial crown.
Twas not the fhaft of love perform'd that feat;
He knew no Cupids then. Now, mark the change:
A brace of ival queens embroil the court; And, while each hand is thus employ din beauty, Where has he room for glory?"

fight. In his heart.

Cly. Well faid, young minion!—I, indeed, forgot CTy. To whom I spoke—But Syligambis comes. Now is your time; for with her comes an idol That claims homage-I'll attend the king. [Exit, Enter Syfigambis, with a Letter, and Parifatis.

Syf. Why will you wound me with your fond complaints.

And urge a fuit that I can never grant? You know, my chied, 'tis Alexander's will; Here, he demands you for his lov'd Hephestion. To difobey him might enflame his wrath, And plunge our house in rains yet unknown.

Par. To loothe this god, and charm him into tem-Is there no victim, none but Parifacts? Must I be doom'd to wretchedness and woe, That others may enjoy the conqu'ror's fmiles? Oh! if you ever lov o my royal father! And fure you did; your guffing tears proclaim it—
If fill his name be dea, have play on me!
He would not thus have forc'd me to defpair; Indeed he would not-Had I begg'd him thus, He would have heard me, e'er my heart was broke.

Syf. When will my fufferings end ! Oh, when, ye For fixty colling years, my four has frond The dread vicilitudes of face unmov'd;

I thought 'em your decrees, and therefore yielded. He fays, Craterus, by the king's appointment,

But this last trial, as it springs from folly,
Exceeds my suff rance, and I must complain.

Lys. When Sysgambis mourns, no common to the cause of misery indeed. Yet, pardon, mighty queen, a wretched prince, Who thus presumes to plead the cause of love Beyond my life, beyond the world [Kneeling.] I prize Fair Parifatis-Hear me, I conjure you! As you have authoriz'd Hephestion's vows, Reject not mine grant me but equal leave
To serve the princels, and let love decide.

Hepb. A bleffing like the beauteous Parifatis,

Whole years of tervice, and the world's wide empire, With all the blood that circles in our veins, Can never merit; therefore, in my favour, I begg'd the king to interpose his int'rest; Therefore I beg'd your majesty's affistance

Your word is past, and all my hopes rest on't.

Lyf. [Rifing.] Perish such hopes! for love's a generous passion, Which seeks the happiness of her we fore, Beyond th' enjoyment of our own defires;

Nor kings nor parent; here have aught to do.
Love owns no influence, and diffains controul:
Let'em fland neuter—'sis all I afk.

Hepb. Such arrogance, did Alexander woo,

Would lose himall the conquetts he has won.

Lys. To talk of conquests well becomes the man hose life and sword are but his rival's gift.

Sys. It grieves me, brave Lysimachus, to find My power fall short of my defires to serve you; You know Hephestion first declar'd his love, And 'tis as true, I promis'd him my aid.
Your glorious king, his mighty advocate,
Became himself an humble suppliant for him.

Forget her, prince, and triumph o'er your passion; A conquest worthy of a soul like thine. Lys. Forget her, Madam! sooner shall the sun

Forget to thine, and tumble from his sphere. Alas, the fiream that circles thro my heart, Is, less than love, effential to my being! Farewel, great queen-my honour now demands That Alexander should himself explain That wond rous merit which exalts his fav'rite, And casts Lysimachus at fuch a distance.

Sys. In this wild transport of ungovern'd passion, Too far, I fear, he will incense the king.—

Is Alexander, yet, my lord, arriv'd?

Hepb. Madam, I know not; but Cassander comes;

He nisy, perhaps, inform us.

Sys. I would shun him.

Something there is, I know not why, that shocks me, Something my nature shrinks at, when I see him.

Enter Caffander. Caf. The face of day now blushes fearlet deep : ow blackens into night. The louring fun, Now blackens into night. As if the dreadful bufinels he foreknew, Drives heavily his fable chariot on. [Thunder. How fierce it lightens! how it thunders round me! All nature feems alarm'd for Alexander. Why be it fo! Her pangs proclaim my triumph. My foul's firft withes are to ftartle fate

Comes, in his room, to govern Macedon; Which nothing but the tyrant's death can hinden Therefore he bids us boldly firike,

Or quit our purpose, and confess our fears.

Caf. Is not his fate refolv'd? this night he dies; And thus my father but forestalls my purpose. How am I flow then? If I rode on thunder, Wing'd as the lightning, it would ask some moments, Ere I could blaft the growth of this Coloffus, Theff. Mark where the haughty Polyperchon Some new affront by Alexander given, [come Swells in his heart, and stings him into madnets. [comes!

Caf. Now, now's our time; he muft, he shall be His haughty foul will kindle at his wrongs, [ours; Blaze into rage, and glory in revenge. Enter Polyperchon.

Pol. Still as I pale, freih murmurs fill my ears; All talk of wrongs, and mutter their complaints, Poor foul-less reptiles !- their revenge expires In idle threats-the fortitude of cowards Their province is to talk! 'tis mine to act, And shew this tyrant, when he dar'd to wrong me, He wrong'd a man whose attribute is vengeance.

Caf. All nations bow their heads with fervile ho-And kifs the feet of this exalted man. [mage, The name, the shout, the blast from ev'ry mouth, Is Alexander! Alexander ftuns

The lift'ning ear, and drowns the voice of heav'n. The earth's commanders fawn like crouching spa-And if this hunter of the barbarous world, [niels; But wind himfelf, a god; all echo him, With universal cry

Pol. I fawn, or echo him! Caffander, no! my foul difdains the thought! Let eaftern flaves, or proftituted Greeks, Crouch at his feet, or tremble if he frown: When Polyperchon can descend fo low Falle to that honour, which through fields of death, I fill have courted where the fight was fiercelt, Be fcorn my portion, infamy my lot.

The king may doom me to a thousand tortures, Ply me with fire, and rack me libe Philotas,

Ere I hall floop to idoize his pride! Caf. Not Aristander, had he rais'd all hell, Cou'd more have shock'd my soul, than thou hast By the bare mention of Philotas' murder. [sone, Oh! Polyperchon, how thall I describe it! Did not your eyes rain blood to fee the hero? Did nor your spirits burst with smothered vengeance, To fee thy noble fellow-warrior tortur'd? Yet, without groaning, or a tear, endure The torments of the damn'd? Oh, death to thinkit!

We saw him bruis'd, we saw his bones laid bare; His veins wide lac'd, and the poor quiv'ring fieth With fiery pincers from his bosom torn, Till all beheld where the great heart lay panting.
Pol. Yet all like flatues flood !-cold, lifeleisfla-As if the fight had troze us into marble : When, with collected rage, we should have flown

To instant vengeance on the ruthless cause, And plung'd a thousand daggers in his heart. Caf. Atour last banquet, when the bowi had gone And firike amazement through the host of Beav n.

A mad Chaldean, with a flaming torch,
Came to my bed last night, and bellowing o'er me,
Well had it been, he cry'd, for Babylon,
If curff Cassander never had been born.

Enter Thessalus with a Packet.

How now, dear Thessalus, what packet's that?

Thess. From Macedon, a trusty slave just brought
Your father chides us for our cold delay;

[it.]

I saw Craterus and Hephession enter
In Persian robes; to Alexander's health
They largely drank; and falling at his feet,
With impious adoration thus addreso'd
Their idol god. Hail, son of thund'ring Jove!
Hail, sirst of kings! young Ammon, live tor ever!
Then kis'd the ground; on which I laugh'd aloud,
And scotting, ask'd 'em, why they kis'd no h aider. The giddy round, and wine inflam'd my spirits, I saw Craterus and Hephestion enter Spurn'd 'tr Learn tho While wi Till I lay Pol. TI He firuck And bid ! But if he Great as Abil like Scoff'd at Caj. I Rememb As any & To give ! Struck by A fword Water w Nay, we Bring thi Pol. C Our wron Theft Rip up n Cofe V Rememb Pol. F Or balef Cof The mig Fierce, Artful I And by la all th Pol.

Whereon

Struck t And the For an h Caf. And to Describ But the Thus fi She'll g And fet But fee Now cl

And wi

For, if

She man

Thef. E'en Syl

E Sta. Swell, I Now, Why de Want o Syf. Trut I Darius Sta. This g li to hi Oh, 1

Out-we And fig Syf.

ent, hinder

e dies; fe. noments, 18. comes! ednets.

e shall be [ours; v ears; aints. res

rong me, eance. zvile ho-[mage, mouth, heav'n. ning fpa-[niels; ht!

of death, ceft, thoufand

13, 11, hou haft [Jone,

9 ngeance, think it!

bare;

g fleth nting. releis ffa-[tues! flown

ad gone irits,

ove! r ever! aloud, h aider.

Whereon the tyrant, flarting from his throne, Spurn'd me to earth, and flamping on my neck, Learn thou to kiff it, was his fierce reply; While with his foot he press'd me to the earth,
Till I lay welt'ring in a foam of blood.
Pol. Thus, when I mock'd the Persians that ador'd

[him, He firuck me on the face, And bid his guards chaftife me like a flave. But if he fcape my vengeance, may he live, Grat as that god whole name he thus profanes, Abil like a flave may I again be beaten, Scoff'd as I pass, and branded for a coward.

Caj. There spoke the spirit of Calisthenes. Remember, he's a man, his flesh as penetrable As any girl's, and wounded too as foon; To give him death no thunders are requir'd. Struck by a stone, young Jupiter has fall'n, A sword has piere'd him, and the blood has follow'd; Water will drown him, or the fire will burn : Nay, we have feen an hundred common ailments Bring this immortal to the gates of death.

Pal. Oh, let us not delay the glorious bufiness! Our wrongs are great, and honour calls for vengeance. -Are your hearts firm?

The As heav'n or hell can make 'em. Pal. Take then my hand; and if you doubt my truth,

Rip up my breaft, and lay my heart upon it. Remember Hermolaus and be hafh'd. gether. Pol. Huh'd as the eve before an hurricane,

Or baleful planets when they shed their poisons.

Gef. This day exulting Babylon receives

The mighty robber—with him comes Roxana,

Fierce, haughty fair! On his return from India, Artful he met him in the height of triumph, And by a choufand wites at Sufa kept him, Is all the luxury of eaftern revels.

Pol. How bore Statira his revolted love? For, if I ert not, ere the king espous'd her,

She made him promife to renounce Roxana.

Thef: No words can paint the anguish it occasion d; E'en syfigambis wept, while the wrong'd queen Streek to the heart, fell lifeless on the ground, And thus remain'd, spite of her care and cordials,

Caf. When the first tumult of her grief was laid, ght to fire her into wild revenge; And to that end, with all the art I could, Describ'd his passion for the bright Roxana. But though I could not to my wish inflame her, Thus far at least her jealoufy will help; She'll give him troubles that perhaps may end him, But fee, the comes. Our plots begin to ripen. Now change the vizor, every one difperfe, And with a face of friendship meet the king.

Ester Syligambis, Statira, and Parifatis. Sta. Oh, for a dagger, a draught of poison, flames ! Swell, heart! break, break, thou wretched, stubborn Now, by the facred fire, 1'll not be held: [thing! Why do you wish my life, yet stifle me for Want of air-Pray, give me leave to walk. Syf. Is there no reverence to my person due? Trut me, Statira, had thy father liv'd, Darius wou'd have heard me. Sta. Oh! he's falfe. This glorious man, this wonder of the world, is to his love, and ev'ry god forefworn.

Oh, I have heard him breathe fuch ardent vows, Out-weep the morning with his dewy eyes, And figh and five ar the lift ning flars away. Syf. Believe not rumour, 'tis impottible.

Thy Alexander is renown'd for truth; Above deceit-

Sta. Away, and let me die. Twas but my fondness, 'twas my easy nature

Wou'd have excus'd him-A subject canvals'd in the mouths of millions? The babbling world can talk of nothing elfe!-Why, Alexander, why would'ft thou deceive me! Have I not lov'd thee, cruel as thou art! Have I not kifs'd thy wounds with dying fondness, Bath'd 'em in tears, and bound 'em with my hair! Whole nights I've fat and watch'd thee as a child. Lull'd thy fierce pains, and fung thee to repose.

Par. If man can thus renounce the folemn ties

Of facred love, who wou'd fegard his vows?

Sta. Regard his yows! the monfler, traitor! Oh, I will forfake the haunts of men, converfe No more with aught that's human; dwell with daile-For fince the fight of him is now unwelcome, [nels] What has the world to give Statira joy?" Yet I muft tell thee, perjur'd av he is, Not the fost breezes of the genial spring, The fragrant violet, or op ning role, Are half fo fweet as Afexander's breath. Then he will talk -good gods, how he will talk! He speaks the kindest words, and tooks such things, Vows with fuch passion, and swears with such That it is heav'n to be deluded by him. Syf. Her forrows must have way.

Sta. Roxana then enjoys my perjur'd love; Roxana clasps my monarch in her arms, Doats of my conquiror, my dear lord, my king.

Oh, 'tis too much! by Heav'n I cannot bear it!

She class him all—She, the curft, happy the I'll die, or rid me of the burning torture. Hear me, bright god of day, hear, ev'ry god.

Sof. Take heed, Statira; weigh it well, my child, Ere desperate love enforces you to swear.

Sea. Oh, fear not that ! a!ready have I weigh'd irs And in the presence here of Heav'n and you, Renounce all converse with perficious man. Farewel, ye cozeners of our eafy fex ! And thou, the fallest of the faithless kind, Farewel, for ever! Oh, farewel! farewel! How could'ft thou, cruel, wrong a heart like mine, Thus fond, thus doating, e'en to madness, on thee! Syf. Clear up thy griefs, thy Alexander comes,

I'rlumphant in the spoils of conquer'd India; This day the hero enters Babylon. Sta. Why, let him come: all eyes will gaze with rapture; All hearts will joy to fee the victor pale, All but the wretched, the forlorn Statira. Syf. Wilt thou not fee him, then? Sta. I fwear, and Heav'n be witness to my vow.

Kneels. Never from this fad hour, never to fee, Nor speak; no, nor, if possible, to think Of Alexander more : this is my vow, And when I break it-

Syf. Do not ruin al.!

Sia. May I again be perjur'd and deluded!
May furies iend my heart! may lightninge blaff me! Syj. Recai, my child, the dreadful imprecation. Sta. No. I will publich it thro' all the court; Then to the bow'rs of great Semiramis, Retire for ever from the treacherous world. There from man's fight will I conceal my woes, And feek in folitude a calm repofe. Nor pray'rs, nor tears, shall my reloives controul, Nor love itfeif, that tyeant of the foul.

Felt while unfeen, Pal. The Perfians all diffatisfied appear; oudly they murmurat Statira's wrongs, And fiercaly centure Alexander's falthon And when he hears the folemn vow the made, The carb that bars her from his fight for ever, Remorfe and horror will at once invade him, Rend his wreck'd foul, and ruth him into madness.

Pol. Of that anon-the court begins to thicken; From ev'ry province of the wide-fpread earth, Ambaffadors in Babylon are met; As if manking had previously agreed
To compliment the tyrant's boundless pride,
And hold a folemn synod of the world, Where Alexander like a god should dictate.

Caf. We must away, or mingle with the crowd, Adore this god till apt occasion calls, To make him what he wou'd be thought-immortal, [Excunt.

A Symphony of Warlike Music.

Enter Clytus, and Aristander in his Robes.

Arist. Haste, reverend Clytus, haste and stop the king

Cly. Already is he enter'd, and the throng Of princes that furround him is fo great, They keep at diffance all that would approach.

Arif. Were he encircled by the gods themselves,
I must be heard, for death awaits his stay.

Cly. Then place yourself within his trumpet's found;

Shortly he'll appear. Enter Alexander in a Triumphal Car, drawn by black Slaves. Trophies and warlike Enfigns in Proceffion before bim. Clytus, Hepheftion, Lyamachus, Aristander, Caprives, Guards, and Attendants.

See, the conqu'ring here comes, Sound the trumper, beat the drums; Sports prepare, the laurel bring. Songs of triumph to him fing.

See the godlike youth advance, Breathe the flute, and lead the dance;

Myrtle wreath, and rofes twine, To deck the hero's brow divine.

Hepb. Hail, fontef forel great Alexander, hail! Aite. Rife all; and thou, my forand felf, my Oh, my Hephestion; raise thee from the earth! Come to my arms, and hide thee in my heart; Neater, yet nearer, elle thou lov'ft me not.

And let your thunder mail me to the centre. If facred friendship ever hurn'd more brightly!

A flame more pure, more permanent than mine. Alex. Thou dearer to me than my groves of laurel,

I know thou loves the thy Alexander more Than Clytus does the king. Lafe Now for my fate ! in

I fee that death swaits me yet I'll on. Dread Sir, I caft me at your royal feet.

Alex. Rife, my Lymachus; thy veins and mine, From the fame fountain have deriv'd their ftreams, Rife to my arms, and let thy king embrace thee.

Alex. Clytus, thy hand .- Thy hand, Lyfimachus, Thus, double arm'd, methick I fland tremendous as the Lybian god, Who, while his grieffs and Inquaff'd facred blood, Acknowledg'd me his foll. My lightning thou, And show my mighty thunder. I have feen Thy glittling fword out-fly colefial fire; And when I've bry'd, Be gone and execute, I've feen him run fwifter then flarting binds, Nor bent the tender grafe beneath his feet.

Lyf. When fame invites, and Alexander leads, Dangers and toils but animate the brave.

Cly. Perith the foldier, inglorious and despis'd, Who flarts from either, when the king cries-Alen. Oh, Clytus! Oh, my noble veteran! Twas, I remember, when I passid the Granicus, His arm p efervid me fram unequal force. When fierce Itanor and the bold Rhefaces, Fellboth apon me, with two mighty blows, And clove my temperld helmet quite afunder; Then, like a god, flew Clytus to my aid; Thy thunder ftruck Rhefares to the ground,

And turn'd with ready vengeance on Iranor. Cly. To your own deeds that victory you owe,

And fure your arms did never boait a nobler.

Alex. By Heav'n, they never did; they never can; And I more glory to have oals'd that fiream, Than to have drove a million o'er the plain. Can none remember? Yes, I know all muft; When glory, like the dazzling eagle, flood Perch'd on my beaverin the Granick flood; When fortune's felf my ftandard trembling bore, And the pale fates flood frighted on the shore; When each immortal on the billows rode, And I myfelf appear'd the leading god

Arift. Hafte, first of heroes, from this fatal place; Far, far from Babylon, enjoy your triumph, Or all the glories, which your youth has won, Are blafted in their spring.

Alex. What mean thy fears? And why that wild diffraction on thy brow? Arift. This morn, great king, I view'd the aner! And, frighted at the direful prodigies, [kh [fky, To Orofmades for inftruction flew; But as I pray'd, deep echoing groans I heard, And thrieks as of the damn'd that howl for line

i prof Thus f The bi Thept Remor To fud

Per. Fer. Led for

Weher

Can [

When Like a On lou Encour Theirt And fh Alex

While Love li And he Lys. A prin Alex Lyf. Humbi

Alex

And th

How d Lyf. When When Thefe But w And fi Obedie

Nature Alex When Was a Your p No, th Thou

The b In the For it I'll not But of Lys.

While Inete Ale. Buhl II cyps

Had to Could Cly.

Andj Lyf. Love c

ince; oder, hail!

felf, my carth! heart;

ot. els, all se ntre.

htly!

n mine. s of laurel.

and mine, ir Areams. ce thee.

fimachus,

blood. g thou. en te.

nds, er leads, efpis'd,

ies-on. n! anicus,

8. der; nd. or.

١,

owe. er. ever can: m, n.

d: bore, 0:0;

iff;

tal place; h, won,

, 2 he angri [fky,

thek'd at rise omen, while amaz'd I lay, profrate rev'rence, on the trembling floor, Thus fpoke the god: The brightest glory of imperial man, The pride of nations, and the book of fame, Remorfeles fate in Babylon has doom'd To fouden and irrevocuble roin. diex. If Heav'n ordains that Babylon muft fall,

Em I prevent th' immutable decree?

Enter Per lecas, Per. Oh, horror! horror! Dreadful and portentous !

Alex. How now, Perdiccas, whence this exclama-Per. As Meleager and myfelf, this morn, [tion? Led forth the Perfian horse to exercise, We heard a noise as of a rothing wind; When fuddenly a flight of bateful birds. Like a thick cloud, obscur'd the face of heav'n to On sounding wings from diff'rent parts they flew, Encount'ring met, and battled in the air; Theirtalons class d, their beaks gave mighty blows, And flow'rs of blood fell copions from their wounds. Ales. Though all the curtains of the fky were drawn, And the flars wink, young Ammon fhall go on; While my Statira fhines I cannot ftray, Love lifts his torch to light me on my way, And her bright eyes create another day.

Lyf. Vouchfafe, dread Sir, to hear my humble

A prince intreats it. Alex. A foldier afks it, that's the nobleft claim.

Lys. For all the fervices my fword has done, Humbly I beg the princels Parifatis.

Alex. Lyfimachus, no more—it is not well .-My word, you know, was to Hephertion given. How dare you then.

Lyf. At your command to fcale th' embattled Orietch the gore-dy'd standard from the foe, [wall, When has Hephestion flown with warmer zeal? When did he leave Lyfimachus behind? Thefe I have done, for thefe were in my pow'r; But when you charge me to renounce my love, And from my thoughts to banish Parifatis; Obedience there becomes impossible,

Nature revolts, and my whole foul rebels.

Alex. It does, brave Sir!—Now hear me, and be When by my order curft C lifthenes [dumb. Was as a traitor doom'd to live in torments, Your pity fped him in despight of me. Think not I have forgot your insolence; No, though I pardon'd it .- Yet, if again Thou dar if to crois me with another crime, The bolts of fury shall be doubled on thee. In the mean time—think not of Parilatis; For it thou doll—by the immortal Ammon! I'll not regard that blood of mine thou four ft,

But use thee as the vileft Macedonian. Lys. 1 knew you partial, ere I mov'd my fuit; Yet know, it shakes not my determin'd purpose; While I have life and firength to wield a fword, I neter will forego the glorious claim.

Alex. Against my life; ha! traitor, was it so.

Tis said that I am rash, of hasty humour;

Buhl appeal to the immortal gods,
If type perty, poor, provincial lord,
Had temper like to mine? My lave, whom I Could tread to clay, dares utter bloody threats.

Cly. Forgive, dread Sir, the frantic warmth of love;
The noble prince, 1 read it in his eyes,
Would die a thousand death's to serve his king,
And juitify his loyalty and truth.

Lyf. I meant his minion there, should feel my arm,
Love claims his blood, nor that he live to tilumph

Love claims his blood, nor that he live to tilumph

I my authority has any influence,
[meant his minion there, should feel my arm,
Love claims his blood, nor that he live to tilumph

In that deftruction that awaits his rival. Aiex. I pardon thee, for my old Clytus' fake. If But if once more, thou mention thy rafh love, A Or dar'h attempt Hephaltion's precious life, I'll pour fuch florms of indignation on thee, . Philotas' rack, Califthenes' difgrace, Shall be delight to what thou that endure. Cly, My lard, the aged queen, with Parifation Come to congratulate your fafe arrival.

Enter Syfigambis and Parifetis.
Alex. Oth, thou, the best of women, Syfigambis, Source of my joy, bleft parent of my level

Syf. In humble duty to the gods and you, Permit us, Sir, with gratitude to kneel Through you the royal house of Perfia shines, Rais'd from the depth of wretchedness and suin, In all the splendor of imperial greatness. To meet me thus was generously done; Had fhe but come to meet her Alexander, I had been bleft indeed.

Cly. Now who first dare Fo tell him of the queen's vow?

Alex. How fares My love?-Ha! neither answer me! all filent! A fudden horror, like a bolt of ice, Shoots to my heart, and numbs the feat of life.

Hepb. I would relate it, but my courage fails me Alex. Why fland you all as you were rooted here? What, will none answer? my Hephellion Glent ! If thou haft any love for Alexander; If ever I oblig'd thee by my care, When through the field of death my eye has watch'd Refolve my doubts, and refcue me from madness. Hepb. Your mourning queen has no difere but Occasion'd by the jewlous pange of love. She heard, dread Sir, (for what can scape a lover) That you, regardless of your vows, at Sula, Had to Roxana's charms relign'd your heart,

And revell'd in the joys you once for wore.

Alex. I own, the fabtle forcerefs, in my riot, My reason gone, seduc'd me to her bed; But when I wak'd, I shoule the Circe off, Though the enchantress held me by the arm, And wept and gaz'd with all the force of love; Nongricy'd I lets for that which I had done, Than when at Thais fuit, enrag'd with wine, I fet the fam'd Persepolis on fire.

Hipb. Your queen Statira, in the rage of grief. And agony of desp'rate love, has fworn, Never to fee your majesty again.

Alex. Oh, Madam, has he, has Statira Iworn, Never to fee her Alexander more? Impossible! the cou'd not, wou'd not fwear it. Is the not gentle as the guileles infant, Mild as the genial breezes of the fpring,

And fofter than the melting fighs of love?

Par. With forrow, Sir, I heard the folemn vow; My mother heard ft, and in vain adjur'd her, By every tender motive, to recal it.

Dwells on your fault, and heightens the offence,
That I could with your majely forget her.
Alex. Ha, could you with me to forget Statira!
The flar, which brightens Alexander's life,

Alex. Hafte, Madam, hafte, if you would have me Unkind ! thou know'ft my life was wrapt in thing Fly, ere, for ever, the abjure the world, [live. And frop the fad procession: [Exit Syf:] and, Parifa-Hang thou about her, wash her feet with tears. [tis, Nay, hafte; the breath of gods, and eloquence Of angels, go along with you. Exit Par. Oh, my heart!

Lif. Now let your majefty, who feels the pangs Of disappointed love, reflect on mine.

Alex. Hat

Cly. What, are you mad? Is this a time to plead! Lyf. The propirest time; he dares not now be Left Heav'n, in juffice, thould avenge my wrongs,

And double ev'ry pang which he feels now.

Alex. Why doit thou tempt me thus to thy undoing ?

Death thou shouldst have, were it not courted fo. But know, to thy confution, that my word, Like deftiny, admits of no repeal:

Therefore in chains that thou behold the nuptials
Of my Hephestion.—Guards, take him prisoner.

[The Guards feize Lysimachus.

Lyf. Away, ye flaves, I'll not refign my fword, Till first I've drench'd it in my rival's blood. Aiex. I charge you kill him not; take him alive; The dignity of kings is now concern'd, And I will find a way to tame this rebel.

Cly. Kneel-for I fee rage lightning in his eyes. Lyf. I neither hope, nor will I fue for pardon; Had I my fword and liberty again, Again I would attempt his favoprite's heart.

Alex. Hence, from my fight, and bear him to a Perdiceas, give this lion to a lion; [dungeon. None speak for him; fly; flop his mouth, away.

[Exeum Lyf. Per. and Guards. Cly. This comes of womenthe refult of love. "Tis folly all, 'tis frenzy and diffraction; Yet were I heated now with wine, I doubt
I should be preaching in this fool's behalf,
Alex. Come hither, Clytus, and my friend He-

Lend me your arms. [pheftion;

I fear, betwixt Statira's cruel vows,

And fond Roxana's arts, your king will fall.

Cly. Better the race of women were destroyed,

And Perfia funk in everlafting ruin.

Hepb. Look up, my lord, and bend not thus your As if you purpos'd to for take the world, [head, Which you have greatly won.

Alex. Wou'd I had not;

There's no true joy in fuch unweildy fortune. Ecernal gasers lafting troubles make; All find my spors, but few observe my brightness. Stand from about me all, and give me air! Yes, I will shake this Cupid from my foul; I'll fright the feeble god with war's alarms, Or drown his pow'r in floods of hostile blood.
Grant me, great Mars, once more in arms to shine,
And break, like lightning, through th' emhattled
Thro' fields of death to whilt be rapid car, [line;
And blaze amids the thunder of the war,
Resistless as the bolt that rends the grove; Or greatly perish, like the son of Jove, [Excunt.

A. C. To III.

SCENE, An Open Court. Trumpers founding a dead March. Lyfinaches led Prifoner. Eumenes, Perdiccas, Parifath, and Guardi.

Par STAY, my Lynmathus! a moment flay!

Oh, whither art thou going!—Hold a mo [mc. will exert it, and the shall be your.

Why would'ft thou then to worfe than death

Lyf. Oh, may'ft thou live in joys without allay Grant it, ye gods! a better fortune waits thee; Live and enjoy it-'tis my dying wish. While to the grave the lost Lysimachus Alone retires, and bids the world adieu.

Par. Even in that grave will Parifatis join thee Yes, cruel man! not death itfelf fhall part us; A mother's pow'r, a fifter's foft'ning tears, With all the fury of a tyrant's frown,

Shall not compel me to outlive thy loss.

Lyf. Were I to live till nature's felf decay'd,
This wond'rous wafte of unexampled love, I never could repay. Oh, Parifatis!
Thy charms might fire a coward into courage; How must they act, then, on a foul like mine? Defenceless and unarm'd, I fight for thee, And may, perhaps, compel th' astonish'd world, And force the king to own that I deserve thee. Eumenes, take the princels to thy charge; Away, Perdiccas, all my foul's on fire. SCENE, the Palace.

Enter Roxana and Cassander.

Rox. Deserted! faid A thou? for a girl abandon'd A puny girl, made up of watry elements! Shall file embrace the god of my defires, And triumph in the heart Roxana claims? Cof. Oh, princess! had you feen his wild despair

Had you beheld him when he heard her vow, Words wou'd but wrong the agonies he felt: He fainted thrice, and life feem'd feed for ever; And when by our affiduous care recall'd, He fnatch'd his fword, and aim'd it at his breaft, Then rail'd at you with most unheard of curses.

Rex, If I forget it, may'ft thou, Jove, deprive me Of vengeance, make me the most wretched thing On earth while living, and when dead, the lowest Of the sends.

Caf. Oh, nobly faid! Just is the vengeance which inflames your foul; Your wrongs demand it but let reason govern;

This wild rage, elfe, may disappoint your aims.

Rox. Away, away, and give a whirlwind room;

Pride, indignation, fury, and contempt,

War in my breaft, and torture me to madness.

Caf. Oh, think not I would check your boldest flights;

No-I approve 'em, and will aid your vengeance. But, princels, let us chuse the safest course, Or we may give our foes new cause of triumph,

Should they discover, and prevent our purpose.

Rox. Fear not, Cassander; nothing shall prevent it;
Rexana dooms him, and her voice is fate.

My soul, from childhood, has aspir'd to empire;
In early nonage I was us'd to reign Among my the-companions : I despis'd The triffing arts, and little wiles of women,
And taught 'em, with an Amazonian fpirit,
To win the fleed, to chase the foaming boat,
And conquer man, the lawless, charter'd savage.

Cas. Her words, her looks, her every motion first

Rose. But when I heard of Alexander's fame, How with a handful, he had vanquish'd millions, Spoil'd all the East, and captive held our queens; Unconquer'd by their charms,
With heavenly pity he affuag'd their woes,
Dry'd up their tears, and footh'd them into peace;
I hung, attentive, on my father's lips,
And wish'd him tell the wond rous tale again. No longer pleating were my former fports;

hai it's t poluntary fi min my fle untive fo Carle Curle lir. At le , cover'd oh! Caf spaint th' n, midft im myself The artless warmeft ferrent lo G. And a now e e Perfian mifrefs he brightel Le all his v re R xa Zur. Oh, h! hall th 'tis refe h, falling, ana and That muft f Vien they Caf. Beho min'd las. Awa Syf. Oh, i treated t

That Alex minst the Stat. Ob ler my fak Tell him, at with fr Tell him I And, fighi Syf. No er appr I thou ref Thy aged Claim thy Star. T To bathe ! let I conj Nor'hurry hould no lad you,

> Rox. 1 With gri he hear To quit That be would p

Syf. H Hence, to And hide

for, in t And caft t in thin n death ; out allay thee;

join the rt us; rs,

ecay'd, e, irage; mine?

world, thee. [Excunt

abandon'd

1 ild despair ow, it:

ever; breaft. curles. eprive me ed thing loweft

foul; vern; aims. room;

ness. ur boldeft geance. mph, pose. revent it;

apire;

it, atz avage. otion fires

e fame, illions, ucens;

peace; ain.

brightest, sure, that ever woman boasted, ne R xana from difdain and infult. In. Oh, thou hast rous'd the lion in my foul! h, 'tis resolv'd; I will resume my sphere, falling, spread a general ruin round me-That must for ever jarr,
When they encounter, thunders must ensue.

(a) Behold, she comes, in all the pomp of forrow, min'd to fulfil her folemn vow! [They retire. Enter Syfigambis aud Statira. la. Away, and let us mark th'important fcene. Syf. Oh, my Statira, how has passion chang'd thee! hink, in the rage of disappointed love, freated thus, and hurried to extremes, That Alexander may denounce against us; Aniast the poor remains of lost Darius. Stat. Oh, fear not that! I know he will be kind, m my fake kind, to you and Parifatis. fell him, I rail'd not at his falshood to me, ht with my parting breath spoke kindly of him; Idlhim I wept at our divided loves, And, fighing, fent a last forgiveness to him. M. No, I can ne'er again presume to meet him, er approach the much-wrong'd Alexander, Ithou refuse to see him—Oh, Statira!

Thy aged mother, and thy weeping country.

Chim thy agent and challenge the common of plosing blufhes crimfon'd on my cheek;

mintive founds, and murmur'd Alexander. Curle on his name !- the doats upon him fill.

oh! Cassander! where shall I find words paint th' extatic transports of my foul! les, midst a circle of unrivall'd beauties, www.felf distinguish'd by the hero.

he warmeft, fure, that ever lover breath'd,

6. And need you then be told, those times are he Persan queen, without a rival, reigns in myself distinguish'd by the hero.

The artless rapture I receiv'd his vows, ferrent love, and everlafting truth.

now engroffes all his thoughts :

In. At length, this conqueror to Zogdia came, d, cover'd o'er with laurels, ftorm'd the city :

let I conjure you not to rack my foul,
Norhurry my wild thoughts to perfect madness:
hould now Darius' awful ghost appear, And you, my mother, stand befeeching by, would perfift to death, and keep my vow.

Ros. This fortitude of foul compels my wonder.

Syl. Hence, from my fight! ungrateful wretch, Rence, to fome defart, And hide thee where bright virtue never flone; for, in the fight of Heaven, I here remounce, and call thee off an alien to my blood. [Exit Syfigambis.

m thy regard, and challenge thy compassion:

Star. Thus low, 1 cast me at your royal feet, bathe them with my tears; or, if you please, lifetout life, and wash 'em with my blood :

Roxana comes forward.

Rox. Forgive, great queen, th' intrusion of a with grief Roxana sees Statira weep; [stranger; we heard, and much applaud your fix'd resolve, to quit the world for Alexander's sake; Amyet I fear, so greatly he adores you, that he will rather chuic to die of forrow,

Than live for the despis'd Roxana's charms. Stat. Spare, Madam, spare your counterfeited fears;

You know your beauty, and have prov'd it's pow'r: Tho' humbly born, have you not captive held, In love's foft chains, the conqu'ror of the world! Away to libertines, and boast thy conquest; A shameful conquest. In his hours of riot, Then, only then, Roxana could furprise My Alexander's heart.

Rox. To some romantic grove's fequester'd gloom, Thy fickly virtue wou'd, it feems, retire, To shun the triumphs of a favour'd rival. In vain thou fly'it-for there, e'en there I'll haunt thee;

Plague thee all day, and torture thee all night: There shalt thou hear, in what extatic joys Roxana revels with the first of men; And, as thou hear'ft the rapt'rous scene recited, With frantic jealoufy thou'lt madly curfe Thy own weak charms, that could not fix the rover. Stat. How weak is woman! At the form she fhrinks, Dreads the drawn fword, and trembles at the thunder; Yet when firong jealoufy inflames her foul, The fword may glitter, and the tempest roar, She scorns the danger, and provokes her fate. Rival, I thank thee—Thou hast fir'd my soul, And rais'd a fform beyond thy pow'r to lay; Soon fhalt thou tremble at the dire effects.

And curfe, too late, the folly that undid thee. Rox. Sure the disdain'd Statira dares not mean it! Stat. By all my hopes of happiness, I dare: And know, proud woman, what a mother's threats, A fifter's fighs, and Alexander's tears, Could not effect, thy rival rage has done. My foul, that starts at breach of oaths begun, Shall, to thy ruin, violated run; I'll fee the king, in spite of all I swore, Tho' curs'd, that thou may'it never fee him more.

Enter Alexander, Hephestion, Clytus, &c. Alex. Oh, my Statira !- thou relentles fair ! Turn thine eyes on me-I would talk to them. What shall I fay to work upon thy foul? What words, what looks, can melt thee to forgivenes?

Stat. Talk of Roxana, and the conquer'd Indies; Thy great adventures, and fuccelsful love, And I will liften to the rapt'rous tale; But rather shun me, shun a desperate wretch, Refign'd to forrow, and eternal wee.

Alex. Oh, I could die! with transport, die before thee! Wouldst thou but, as I lay convuls'd in death, Cast a kind look, or drop a tender tear. Say but, 'twas pity, one so fam'd in arms, One who has 'scap'd a thousand deaths in battle, For the first fault, should fall a wretched victim To jealous anger, and offended love.

Rox. Am I then fall'n fo low in thy efteem, That for another thou would'ft rather die, Than live for me?-How am I alter'd, tell me, Since last at Sufa, with repeated oaths, You swore the conquest of the wori' afforded Less joy, less glory, than Roxana's love!

Alex. Take, take that conquer'd world, dispose of crowns, And canton out the empires of the globe; But leave me, Madam, with repentant tears, And undiffembled forrows, to atone The wrongs I've offer'd to this injur'd excellence.

Rox. Yes, I will go, ungrateful as thou art ! Bane to my life, and murd'rer of my peace;

I will be gone; this last disdain has cur'd me. But have a care. I warn you not to trust me; Or, by the gods, that witness to thy pe juries, -I warn you not to truft me; I'll raife a fire that shall consume you both, Tho' I partake the ruin.

Emer Syfigambis.

Sta. Alexander! Oh, is it poffible? Immortal gods! can guilt appear to lovely?
Yet, yet I pardon, I forgive thee all.
Alex. Forgive me all! Oh, catch the heavenly founds!

Catch 'em, ye winds, and, as you fly, disperse The rapt'rous tidings thro' th' extended world, That all may there in Alexander's joy

Sta. Yes, dear deceiver, I forgive thee all, But longer dare not hear thy charming tongue; For while I hear thee, my refolves give way Be therefore quick, and take thy last farewel; Farewel, my love Eternally farewel!

Alex, Oh, my Hephestion! bear me, or I fink.

Why, why Statira, will you use me thus?

I know the cause, my working brain divines it: You fay you've pardon'd, but with this referve,
Never again to bless me with your love,
Sta. All-feeing Heav'n support m:!
Alex, Speak to me, love! tho' banishment and Hang on thy lips, yet while thy tongue pronounces, The music will awhile suspend my pains, And mitigate the horrors of despair. Oh, could I fee you thus

Sort pity pleads, and I again must love him:
But I have sworn, and therefore cannot yield.
Alex. Go then, inhuman, triumph in my pains,
Feed on the pangs that rend this wretched heart;
For now 'tis plain you never lov'd. Statira!
Oh, I could found that charming, cruel name,
Till the tir'd echo faint with repetition; Till the tir'd echo faint with repetition; Till all the breathless groves, and quiet myrtles, Shook with my fight, as if a tempelt bow'd 'em. My tongue could dwell for ever on that name. Statira! Oh, Statira!

Stg. Such was his looks, fo malting was his voice, Such his fort fighs, and his deluding tears, When with that pleasing, perjur'd breath avowing, His whispers trembled thro' my cred'lous ears,

And told the flory of my utter ruin.

Gods! if I flay, I flall again believe.

Farewel, thou greatest pleasure, greatest pain,

Alex. I charge ye, flay her—

Oh, turn ther, thou bewitching brightness, turn;

Hear my last words, and see my dying pangs!

Lo! at your feet, behold, a monarch falls,

A prince, who gave the conquer'd world to the

A prince, who gave the conquer'd world to thee,
And thought thy love bought cheaply with the gift;
Whole glories, laurels, bloom but in thy finiles,
Now forunk and blaffed by thy cruel bate,
Untimely falls. Yet, oh! when thou fhalt die,
May death be mild, as thou art cruel now;
And may thy beauties gently link to carth,
While circling angels wat thee to repose.

While circling angels wast thee to repose.

Sys. Art thou turn'd savage? Is thy heart of mar
But if this posture move thee not to pity, [hie
I never will speak more.

Alex. Oh, my Statira!

I fwear, my queen, I'll not out-live our parting.

My foul grows fill as death. Say, wilt thou pardon?

Tis all I ask. Wilt thou forgive the transports

Of a deep-wounded heart, and all is well?

Stat. Rife! and may Heav'n forgive you, like.

Statire.

Alex. You are too gracious-Clytus, bear me hence.

When I am laid i' th' earth, yield her the world. There's fomething here, that heaves as cold as ice, That ftops my breath. Farewel, farewel for ever!

Sta. Hold off, and let me run into his arms; My life, my love, my lord, my Alexander! Ir thy Statira's love can give thee joy, Revive, and be immortal as the gods.

Alex, My flutt'ring heart, tumultous with it's blifs, Would leap into thy bofom; 'tis too much. Oh, let me press thee in my eager arms, And ftrain thee hard to my transported breaft!

Sta. But Mall Roxana-Alex. Let her not be nam'd. Oh, Madam! how shall I repay your goodness?-And you, my fellow-warriors, who could grieve For your loft king? But talk of griefs no more; The banquet waits, and I invite you all. My equals in the throne, as in the grave, Without dictinction come, and share my joy. Cly. Excuse me, Sir, if I for once, am absent.

Alex. Excuse thee, Clytus! None shall be excus'd. All revel out the day, 'tis my command. Gay as the Perfian god, ourfelf will fland, With a crown'd goblet in our lifted hand; Young Ammon and Statira shall go round, While antic measures beat the burden'd ground, And to the vaulted fkies our trumpers clangors found. Exeunt.

IV.

Enter Clytus, Hephestion, and Eumenes. TRGE me no more; I hate the Perfian drefs, Nor fould the king be angry at the rev'rence

I owe my country-facred are her customs, And honest Clytus will to death observe em. Oh! let me rot in Macedonian rag Or, like Califthenes, be cag'd for lite, Rather than thine in fathions of the East.

Eum. Let me, brave Clytus, as a friend, intrest

Hepb. What virtue is there that adorns a throne, Exaits the heart, and dignifies the man, Which thines not brightly in our royal mafter? And yet perverfely you'll oppose his will,
And thwart an innocent, unhurtful humour.

Cly. Unhurtful! Oh! tis monstrous affectation!

Pregnant with venom, in it's nature black, And not to be excus'd!-Shall man, weak man, Exact the rev'rence which we pay to Heaven, And bid his fellow-creatures kneel before him, And yet be innocent? Hephestion, na; The pride that lays a claim to aduration,

Eum. Yet what was I ve, the god whom we adord
Was he not once a man, and rais d to Heaven
For gen rous acts, and virtues more than human Hepb. By all his thunder, and his fov reign pos a

I'll not believe the world yet ever felt An arm like Alexander's.—Not that god You nam'd, the riding in a car of fire, Could in a shorter space do greater deeds Or more effectually have raught mankind,
To bend fubmiffive, and confels his fway.

Cly. I tell you, boy, that Clytus loves the king As well as you, or any foldier here; Wet I diffain to footh his growing pride :

Youn I'll go And And And I Stra g And Hej

Enter

The l

H₄ Cly

Pa Spare Jkno Ale Speak For o I'll fo You Ale Her ft

And I

Thro By all

Sta

By all Oh! Syl But t Ale Were And t The' By all Uplifi

Fly, C

And t Bring

Sta Oh, n By gra With Oh, ti Ale Tis n Sta

I dref

And c

Wher

But n Ale And y And a Meth

What E Why, Rox And to Rozar

s, bear me e world. old as ice, for ever! is arms;

hit's blifs,

nefs?grieve more;

reaft!

joy. be excus'd.

round, ciangors (Excunt.

enes. rfian drefs, ry at the 'em.

d, intreat a throne,

after?

our. frectation! k man, ven, e him,

we adore aven human? eign pow's

he king

The hero charms me, but the god offends. Hapb. Then go not to the banquet.
Cly. Why, I was bid,
Young minion, was I not, as well as you?
I'll go, my friend, in this old habit, thus, And laugh, and drink the king's health heartily; And while you, blushing, bow your heads to earth, And hide them in the dust-1'il stand erect, Straight as a spear, the piliar of my country, And be by so much nearer to the gods. Hepb. But fee, the king appears.

Enter Alexander, Statira, Syfigambis, Parifatis, and Attendants.

Par. Oh, gracious monarch! Spare him! oh, spare Lysimachus's life! Iknow you will—the brave delight in mercy. [rows. Shield me, Statira, shield me from her for-Par. Save him! oh, fave him, we it be too late! Speak the kind word, let not your foldier perish, or one rash action, by despair occasion'd. You shall not pass.—Statira! oh, intreat him!

Alex. Oh, Madam! take her, take her from about

Her freaming eyes affail my very foul, [me : And shake my best resolves. Sta. Did I not break

Thro' all for you? Nay, now, my lord, you must. By all th' obedience I have paid you long, By all your passion, lighs, and tender looks, Oh! fave a prince, whole only crime is love.

Syf. I had not join'd in this bold fuit; my fon,

But that it adds new luftre to your honours.

Alex. Honour! what's that? Has not Scatira faid. Were I the king of the blue firmament, And the bold Titans should again make war, Tho' my reliffless thunders were prepar'd, By all the gods, the should arrest my arm, Uplifted to destroy them. Fly, Hephestion, Fly, Clytus; Instch him from the jaws of death, And to the royal banquet bring him traight, Bring him in triumph, fit for loads of honour. [Excunt Hepheltion, &c.

Sta. Why are you thus, beyond expression, kind? Oh, my lord! my raptur'd heart,. By gratitude and love at once instam'd, With wild emotion flutters in my breaft; Oh, teach it, then, inftruct it how to thank you! Alex. Excellent woman !

Tis not in nature to support such joy. Sta. Go, my best love; unbend you at the banquet; Indulge in joy, and laugh your cares away; While, in the bowers of great Semiramis, I diels your bed with all the sweets of nature, And crown it as the altar of our loves, Where I will lay me down, and fofuly mourn, But never close my eyes, till you return. [E.

Alex. Is the not more than mortal can defire;
As Venus lovely, and as Dian chafte?

And yet, I know not as the chafte? And yet, I know not why, our parting shocks me; And yet, I know not way, our patting and A ghaftly paleness fat upon her brow;
Her voice, like dying echoes, fainter grew;
And as I wrung her by the rosy singers,
Methought the strings of my great heart were crack'd.
What could it mean!—Forward, Leomadus.

Ester Roxana, Cassander, and Polyperchon.
What Madan case you that!

Why, Madam, gaze you thus?

Rox. For a last look,
And to imprint the memory of my wrongs,
Rozans's wrongs, an Alexander's mind.

Alex. On to the banquet. [Ex. Alexander's mind.

Rox. Ha! with fuch distain!

So unconsern'd! Oh, I could tear myfelf, [Ex. Alex. &c.

Him, you, and all the hateful world, to atoms!

Caf. Still keep this spirit up, preserve it fill,

And know us for your friends. We like your rage; Here, in the fight of Heav'n, Caffander fwears, Unaw'd by death, to fecond your revenge. Speak but the word, and, fwift as thought can fly, The tyrant falls a victim to your fury.
Rov. Shall he then die? Shall I confent to kill him?

I, that have lov'd him with that eager fondness, shall I confent to have him bafely murder'd, And fee him clasp'd in the cold arms of death?

No, Caffander,

Worlds should not tempt me to the deed of horrar. Pol. The weak fond scruples of your love might

Was not the empire of the world concern'd: But, Madam, think, when time shall teach his tongue, How will the glorious infant, which you bear, Arraign his partial mother, for refusing To fix him on the throne which here we offer? Caf. If Alexander lives, you cannot reign, Nor will your child. Old Syfigambis plans Your fure destruction. Boldly, then, prevent her; Give but the word, and Alexander dies.

Pol. Not he alone, the Perfian race shall bleed. At your command, one universal ruin, Shall, like a d-luge, whelm the eastern world, I'ill gloriously we raise you to the throne. Rov. But till the mighty ruin be accomplish'd,

Where can Roxana fly th' avenging arms

Of those who must succeed this godlike man?

Cas. Would you vouchfase, in these expanded arms To feek a refuge, what could hurt you here? There you might reign with undiminish'd lustre, Queen of the Eaft, and empress of my foul.

Rox. Difgrac'd Roxana! whither art thou fallen! Till this curs'd hour, I never was unhappy: There's not one mark of former majeffy, To awe the flave that offers at my honour.

Caf. Impute not, Madam, my unbounded passion To want of rev'rence—I have lov'd you long. Rox. Peace, villain, peace, and let me hear no more. Think'ff thou I'd leave the bosom of a god, And stoop to thee, thou moving piece of earth? Hence, from my fight, and never more prefume To meet my eyes; for, mark me, if thou dar'ft, To Alexander I'll unfold thy freafon: Whose life, in spite of all his wrongs to me,

Shall fill be facred, and above thy malice. Caf. By your own life, the greatest oath, I swear, Cassander's passion from this hour is dumb; And, as the best aconement I can make, Statira dies, the victim of your vengeance

Rox. Caffinder, rife; 'tis ample expiation.
Yes, rival, yes—this night shall be thy last.
This night, I know, is cestin'd for thy triumph, And gives my Alexander to thy arms.

Oh, murd rous thought!

Pol. The bow'rs of great Semiramis are made

The scene of love; Perdices holds the guard.

Cas. Now is your time. While Alexander revels,

And the whole court re-echoes with his riot, To end her, and with her to end your fears.
Give me but half the Zogdian flaves that wait you,
And deem her dead. Nor fhall a foul escape,

That ferves your rival, to difperfe the news. Rox. By me they die, Perdiccas and Statira; Hence with thy sid, I neither afk nor want it, But will mylelf conduct the flaves to battle. Were the to fall by any arm but mine, Weil might fhe murmur, and arraign her flare;

Tis life well loft to die by my command. Rival, rejoice, and, pleas'd, refign thy breath, Roxana's vengeance grants thee noble death. [Exit. Caf. All but her Jove, this Semele difdains. We must be quick-She may, perhaps, betray The great defign, and fruftrate our revenge.

Pol. Has Philip got instructions how to act?

Caf. He has, my friend ; and, faithful to our caufe, Resolves to execute the fatal order. Bear him this phial-it contains a poison Of that exalted force, that deadly nature, Should Æsculapius drink it, in five hours

(For then it works) the god himself were mortal.

I drew it from Nonacris' horrid spring; Mix'd with his wine, a fingle drop gives death,

And fends him howling to the shades below Pol. I know it's power, for I have feen it try'd; Pains of all forts, thro' every nerve and artery At once it scatters-burns at once, and freezes, Till, by extremity of torture forc'd, The foul confents to leave her joyless home, And seek for ease in worlds unknown to this

Caf. Now let us part : with Theffalus and Philip Hafte to the banquet - t his fecond call, Let this be given him, and it crowns our hopes. Now, Alexander, now, we'll foon be quits; Death for a blow, is interest indeed.

S C E N E, the Palace.

Alexander, Perdiccas, Caffander, Polyperchon, Eu-

menes, discovered at a Banquet, &c.
[A flourish of Trumpets:
Alex. To our immortal health, and our fair queen's: All drink it deep; and while the bowl goes round, Mars and Bellona join to make us mufic. A thousand bulls be offer'd to the fun, White as his beams : fpeak the big voice of war; Beat all our drums, and found our filver trumpets; Provoke the gods to follow our example,

In bowls of nectar, and replying thunder.

[Flourift of Trumpets.

Enter Clytus, Hephestion, and Lysimachus bloody.

Cly. Long live the king; long live great Alexander;

And conquest crown kis arms with deathless laurels, Propitious to his friends, and all he favours.

Alex. Did I not give command you frould preserve Lyfimachus?

Hepb. Dread Sir, you did. Alex. What, then, Portend these bloody marks?

Hepb. Ere we arriv'd, Perdiccas had already plac'd the prince In a lone court, all but his hands unarm'd.

Cly. On them were gauntlets; such was his defire, In death to shew the difference betwixt The blood of Eacus and common men. Forth iffuing from his den, amaz'd we faw
The horrid favage, with whose hideous roar
The palace shook. His angry eye-balls glaring,
With triple fury, menac'd death and ruin.

Hepb. With unconcern the galfant prince advanc'd:

Hepb. With unconcern the gallant Now, Parifatis, be the glory thine, But mine the danger, were his only words; For, as he spoke, the furious beaft descried him,

And 11 the option of the following the specific of the flock.

Cly. Agile and vigorous, he avoids the flock.

With a flight wound; and, as the lion turn'd, Thrust gauntlet, arm and all, into his throat, And, with Herculean strength, tears forth the tongue: Foaming and bloody, the disabled savage Sunk to the earth, and plough'd it with his teeth; While, with an active bound, your conqu'ring foldier, Leap'd on his back, and dash'd his scull in pieces. Alex. By all my laurels, 'twas a godlike act;

And 'tis my glory, as it shall be thine, That Alexander could not pardon thee. Oh, my brave foldier ! think not all the pray'rs And tears of the lamenting queens could move me Like what thou haft perform'd; grow to my brealt. Lyf. Thus, felf-condemn'd, and confcious of my guilt, How fhall I ftand fuch unexampled goodness? Oh, pardon, Sir, the transports of despair, The frantic outrage of ungovern'd love! Even when I fhew'd the greatest want of reverence,

I could have died, with rapture, in your service. Alex. Lyfimachus, we both have been transported; But, from this hour, be certain of my heart, A lion be the impress of thy shield, And that gold armour we from Porus won, Thy king presents thee-But thy wounds ask reft. Lyf. I have no wounds, dread Sir: or, if I had,

When Alexander was the glorious health. Alex. Thy hand, Hephestion. Class him to thy And wear him ever near thee. Parifatis Theart, Shall now be his who ferves me best in war. Neither reply, but mark the charge I give: Live, live as friends-You will, you muft, you shall.

Tis a god gives you life.

Cly. Oh, monftrous vanity!
Alex. Ha! what fays Clytus? Who am !?
Cly. The fon

Of good King Philip. Alex, By my kindred gods,

Tis falfe. Great Ammon gave me birth.

Cly. I've done.

Alex. Clytus, what means that drefs? Give him Take it, and wear it. [a robe there,

Cly. Sir, the wine, the weather
Has heated me; besides, you know my humour.
Alex. Oh, 'tis not well! I'd rather perish, burn,

Than be fo fingular and froward. Cly. So would 1-Burn, hang, drown, but in a better cause. I'll drink or fight for facred majefty

With any here. Fill me another bowl, Will you excuse me?

Alex. You will be excus'd.

But let him have his humour; he is old.

Cly. So was your father, Sir; this to his mem'ry. Sound all the trumpets there. Alex. They shall not found

Till the king drinks. Sure, I was born to wage Eternal war. All are my enemies, Whom I could tame—But let the sports go on.

Lyf. Nay, Clytus, you that could advise so well-Alex. Let him persist, be positive, and proud, Envious and fullen 'mongst the nobler souls, Like an infernal spirit that bath fiole From hell, and mingled with the mirth of gods.

Cly. When gods grow hot, no difference I know Twixt them and devils-Fill me Greek wine-yes, Yet fuller-I want fpirits.

Alex. Let me have mufic. Cly. Mufic for boys - Clytus would hear the ground Of dying foldiers, and the neigh of fleeds; Or, if I must be petter'd with shrill founds, Give me the cries of matrons in fack'd towns.

Hepb. Let us, Lyfimachus, awake the king; A heavy gloom is gathering on his brow. Kneel all, with humbleft adoration kneel, And let a health to Jove's great fon go round.

Alex. Sound, found, that all the universe miy Oh, for the voice of Jave, the world should know The kindness of my people. - Rife. Oh, rife,

My han Cly. Alex. Thou e Sit, all The no And fpe Who, That et And ju The rac Nevet ; Lyf. Nor gre Laid T Oppos' Were they all mortal, they should stream unminded, Alex Cly. But hat Come, A bette Alex Cly. And fo The bo Nay, f When

> Why 1 Than/e Philip Alex Is then To con The ft In ail t When Lyfi na Did T Did I The di

> > I was When 1 mou And a When That 1 Lys.

> > > Alex

Lyf.

Alex

I leap' And, All ov Till, Pluck' And h Then, Mov'd Cly.

> That ! For th Cly. Elfe h

Alex

pray'rs d move me my breaft. cious of my nefs? reverence, fervice.

ransported; art. on, ds afk reft. if I had,

unminded, him to thy s [heart, war. re:

, you shall. m I

h. Give him robe there.

humour. rifh, burn,

is mem'ry.

to wage go on. fo wellproud, uls,

of gods. ce I know vine-vel,

the ground 5, wns.

king; 1, und. verle miy f trumpets. d know rife,

My hands, my arms, my heart, are ever yours.

Cly. I did not kifs the earth, nor must your [handam unworthy, Sir.

Alex. I know thou art: Thou envient the great honour of thy master.— Sit, all my friends. Now let us talk of war; The noblest subject for a soldier's mouth; And speak, speak freely, else you love me not .-Who, think you, was the greatest general That ever led an army to the field?

Hepb. A chief fo great, fo fortunately brave, And juffly fo renown'd as Alexander, The radiant fun, fince first his beams gave light, Never yet faw. Lyf. Such was not Cyrus, or the fam'd Alcides, Nor great Achilles, whose tempestuous sword Laid Troy in ashes, though the warring gods Oppos'd him.

Alex. Oh, you flatter me!

Cly. They do indeed; and yet you love 'em for't; But hate old Clytus for his hardy virtue. Come, shall I speak a man, with equal bravery, A better general, and experter foldier?

Alex. I should be glad to learn: instruct me, Sir, Cly. Your father, Philip .- I have seen him march, And fought beneath his dreadful banner, where The boldeft at this table would have trembled. Nay, frown not, Sir, you cannot look me dead. When Greeks join'd Greeks, then was the tug of war, The labour'd battle fweat, and conquest bled. Why should I fear to speak a bolder truth Than e'er the lying priests of Ammon told you? Philip fought men, but Alexander women.

Alex. All envy, spite and envy, by the gods! Is then my glory come to this at last, To conquer women! Nay, he said the fouteft, The floutest here wou'd tremble at his dangers. In all the fickness, all the wounds I bore, When from my reins the javelin's head was cut, Lyfinachus, Hephestion-speak, Perdiccas, Did I once tremble? Oh, the cursed salshood! Did I once shake or groan; or act beneath The dauntless resolution of a king?

Lyf. Wine has transported him. Alex. No, 'tis mere malice. was a woman, too, at Oxydrace, When, planting on the wa'ls a scaling ladder, I mounted, spight of show'rs of stones, bars, arrows. And all the lumber which they thunder'd down; When you beneath, cry'd out, and fpread your arms, That I should leap among you. Did I so?

Lys. Dread Sir, the old man knows not what he fays. . Was I a woman, when, like Mercury, I leap'd the walls and flew amidft the foe; And, like a baited lion, dy'd myself All over in the blood of those bold hunters; Till, spent with toil, I battled on my knees Pluck'd forth the darts, that made my shield a forest, And hurl'd "em back with most unconquer'd fury? Then, thining in my arms, I fun'd the field; Mov'd, spoke, and fought, and was myself a war. Cly. 'Twas all bravado. For, before you leap'd,

You faw that I had burft the gates afunder. Alex. Oh, that thou wert but once more young and vig'rous, That I might firike thee profirate to the earth, For this audacious tye, thou feebled dotard.

Cly. I know the reason, why you use me thus.

I say'd you from the sword of bold Rhesaces,

Else had your godkip flumber'd in the dust; And most ungratefully you hate me for it.

Alex. Hence from the banquet. Thus far I forgive thee.

Cly. First try (for none can want forgiveness more) To have your own bold blasphemies forgiven, The shameful riots of a vicious life; Philotas' murder.

Alex. Ha! what faid the traitor? Hepb. Clytus, withdraw-Eumenes, force him hence.

He must not tarry. Drag him to the door. Cly. No; let him fend me, if I must be gone, To Philip, Attalaus, Calisthenes, To great Parmenio, and his slaughter'd sons.

Alex. Give me a javelin. Hepb. Hold, mighty Sir.

Alex. Sirrah! off, Left I at once firike through his heart and thine. Lys. Oh, facred Sir, have but a moment's patience!

Alex. What! Hold my arms? I shall be murder'd here,

Like poor Darius, by my barb'rous subjects .-Perdiccas, found our trumpets to the camp; Call all my foldiers to the court. Nay, hafte; For there is treason plotting 'gainst my life, And I shall perish ere they come to fave me. Where is the traitor?

Cly. Sure there's none amongst us, But here I ftand-honeft Clytus! Whom the king invited to the banquet. Alex. Be gone to Philip, Attalaus, Califthenes, Stabs bim.

And let bold fubjects learn by thy example, Not to provoke the patience of their prince.

Cly. The rage of wine is drown'd in gushing blood. Oh, Alexander, I have been to blame! Hate me not after death: For I repent, That I fo far have urg'd your noble nature.

Alex. What's this I hear! Say on, my dying foldier.

Cly. I should have kill'd myself, had I but liv'd To be once fober .- Now I fall with honour; My own hands wou'd have brought foul death.

Oh, pardon! Alex. Then I am loft: what has my vengeance done!

Who is it thou hast flain? Clytus! what was he? The faithfullest subject, worthiest counsellor, The bravest foldier, he who fav'd thy life, Fighting bare-headed at the river Granick, And now he has a noble recompence; For a rash word spoke in the heat of wine, The poor, the honest Clytus, thou hast flains Clytus, thy friend, thy guardian, thy preferver.

Hepb. Remove the body, it inflames his forrow. Aiex. None dare to touch him: we must never Cruel Hephestion and Lysimachus, part. That had the power, yet would not hold me. Oh!
Lyf. Dear, Sir, we did.

Alex. I know ye did; ye held me-Like a wild beaft, to let me go again With greater violence. Oh, ye've undone me! Excuse it not; you that cou'd stop a lior, Cou'd not turn me: ye should have drawn your fwords, And barr'd my rage with their advancing points; Made reason glitter in my dazzled eyes, Till I had feen the precipice before me: That had been noble, that had shewn the friend;

Clytus wou'd so have done, to save your lives.

Lys. When men shall hear how highly you were urg'd14

Alex. No; you have let me flain my tiling glory, Here, take my weapon then; and, if thou dar's. Sta. How little know it thou what Statisadard Oh, I am all a blot, which feas of tears, And my heart's blood, can never walk away; Yet 'tiv but jost I try, and on the point,
Still reeking, hard my black polluted breast.

Hepb. Oh, facred Sir—it shall not—must not be.
Lys. Forgive, dread Sir—Forgive my pious hands,
That dare, in duty, to disam my mister.

Alex. Yes, cruel men, ye now can shew your

Arength;

Here's not a flave, but dares oppose my juffice, Yet none had courage to prevent this murder; But I will render all endeavours vain, That tend to fave my life --- Here will I lie Falls on Clytus

Close to my murder'd soldier's bleeding file. Thus clasping his cold body in my arms, Till death, like his, has clos'd my eyes for ever.

Enter Perdiccas. Per. Treafon! foul treafon! Hepheftion, where's the king?

Hepb. There, by old Clytus' fide, whom he hath

Per. Rife, facred Sir, and hafte to fave the queen. Roxans, fill'd with furious jealoufy, Came with a guard, unmark'd : the gain'd the bow'r, And broke upon me with fuch fudden fury,

That all have perish'd who oppos'd her rage.

Alex. What says Persiccas? Is the queen in danger? Per, Haffe, Sir, or the dies.

Alex. Thus from the grave I rife to fave my love.
All draw your swords, on wings of lightning move;
Young Ammon leads you, and the cause is love;
When I will all the cause is love; When I ruft on, fure none will dare to flay, "Ph' beauty calls, and glory leads the way. [Exeunt.

S'CENE, the Botver of Semiramis.

Statira discovered afleep. Sta. DLESS me, ye pow'rs above, and guard my virtue! Where are you fled, dear shades? Where are you fled? Twas but a dream, and yet I faw and heard My royal parents, who, while pious care Sat on their faded cheeks, pronounc'd with tears, Tears such as angels weep, this hour my last. But hence with fear—my Alexander comes, And fear and danger ever sted from him.

Wou'd that he were here! For, oh! I tremble, and a thousand terrors Rufh in upon me, and alarm my heart. But hark, 'tis he, and all my fears are fled;

y life, my joy, my Alexander comes.
Rox. [Within.] Make fast the gate with all it's maffy bars!

At length we've conquer'd this stopendous height, And reach'd the grove

Sta. Ye guardian gods, defend me! Rozana's voice! then all the vision's true, And die I muft.

Enter Roxana. Rox. Secure the brazen gate. Where is my rival? 'tis Roxana calls.

Sia. And what is the, who, with fuch tow'ring

Wou'd awe a princefs that is born above her? Rox. Behold this dagger!—'Tis thy fate, Statira! Behold, and meet it as becomes a queen.
Fain wou'd I find thee worthy of my vengeance;

Sta. How little know'ft thou what Statiradares! Yes, cruel woman! yes, I dare meet death, With a refolve, at which thy coward heart Wou'd fhrink. For terror haunts the guilty mind; While conscious innocence, that knows no fear, Can, smiling, pase, and scorn thy idle threats.
Raw. Return, fair insolent! return, I say.

Dar'ft thou, presumptuous, to invade my rights! Restore him quickly to my longing arms, And with him give me back his broken vows; (For, perjur'd as he is, he still is mine,)
Or I will rend them from thy bleeding heart,

Sta. Alas, Roxana! 'tis not in my power; I cannot if I wou'd-And, oh, ye gods! What were the world to Alexander's tofs!

Rox. Oh, forcerefs, to thy accurfed charms I owe the frenzy that, diffracts my foul: To them I owe my Alexander's lofs.
Too late thou trembleft at my just revenge,

My wrongs cry out, and vengeance will have way, Sta. Yetthink, Roxana, ere you plunge in murder, Think on the horrors that must ever haunt you; Think on the furies, those avenging ministers Of Heaven's high wrath, how they will tear your All day diffract you with a thousand sears; [soul; And when by night thou vainly seek'st repose, They'll gather round, and interrupt your flumbers With horrid dreams, and terrifying visions.

Rox. Add fill, if possible, superior horrors. Rather than leave my great revenge unfinish'd; I'll dare 'em all, and triumph in the deed.

herefore [Holds up the dagger. Sta. Hold, hold, thy hand advanc'd in air. I read my fentence written in thy eyes: Yet, oh, Roxana, on thy black revenge, One kindly ray of female pity beam, And give me death in Alexander's presence.

Rox. Not for the world's wide empire hould't thou fee him.

Fool! but for him thou might'ft unheeded live; For his fake only art thou doom'd to die. The fole remaining joy that glads my foul, is to deprive thee of the heart I've loft. Enter Slave.

Slove. Madam, the king and all his guards are

With frantic rage they thunder at the gate, And must e'er this have gain'd admittance. Rox. Ha!

Too long I've trifled. Let me then redeem The time mispeut, and make great vengeance sure. Sto. Is Alexander, Oh, ye gods, so nigh, And can he not preserve me from her fury

Rex. Nor he, nor Heav'n shall shield thee from my justice.

Die, forc'refs, die, and all my wrongs die with thee. Stabs ber. Alex. [Witbout.] Away, ye flaves! fland off-

With lightning's wings? nor heav'n, nor earth, shall stop me.

Euter Alexander. Ha! oh, my foul! my queen, my love, Statfra! These wounds! are these my promis'd joys?

My only love, my best and dearest blessing, Wou'd I had died before you enter'd here; For thus delighted, while I gaze upon thee, Death grows more horrid, and I'm lothe to leave thee

Alex. Thou halt not leave me-Cruel, cruel far! Oh, where's the monfter, where's the horrid fiend, That firuck at innotence, and murder'd thee?

Rox. In jeslo wret Wou'd Alex Sta. 1

Hafte to Thus le Alex Oh, He

Sig. I Yel er Alex That I Sta.

Roxan The de Amidf And, e Enrich Alex All, al

The ro

That w

Rox

Oh, tu You'li Liex That y Rox. In spig Yes, t Thus, Till yo Alex

Rox Think Into a Ale My ey Rox

And I

But, I

If the That Send, Strike Killt But v Nor e All

Caj Eu

The Struc She f Left Your on dar's tatira darea! ath, art ilty mind; no fear, reats. fay. y rights!

VOW'S heart. ower: 51

arms

ge, have way, in murder, unt you; nifters I tear your is; [foul; repole, flumbers 18.

rrors. nifh'd: the dagger. air.

nce. e fhould'A ed live;

ıl, guards are ate,

ce. em ance fure. gh, thee from

with thee. Stabs bere or earth, atira! ys? .

eave thee ruel fars! rrid fiend, hee?

luve, In jealous madness gave the fatal blow: A wretch, that, to possess once more thy lave, wou'd with the blood of millions stain her foul. To dungeons, tortures, drag her from my fight,

Sta. My foul is on the wing. Oh, come, my lord,
Hafte to my arms, and take a last farewel.

Thus let me die. Oh! Oh!

Alex. Look up my love. Oh, Heav'n! and will you, will you take her from

Sig. Farewel, my moft lov'd lord : Ah, mel farewel. Yet, ere I die, grant this request.

Alex. Oh, speak, That I may execute before I follow thee. Sta. Leave not the world till Heav'n demands you. Spare Roxana's life.—'Twas love of you that caus'd The death fhe gave me. And, oh! fometimes think, Amidft your revels, think on your poor queen; And, ere the chearful bow! falute your lips, Enrich it with a tear, and I am happy. [Dies.

Alex. Yet, ere thou tak'ft thy flight—She's gone, the's gone.

All, all is huth'd, no music now is heard; The roles wither; and the fragrant breath That wak a their weets, shall never wake 'em more. Rox, 'Weep not, my ford! no forrow can recal her. Oh, turn your eyes, and, in Roxana's arms, You'li find fond love, and evertaiting truth. Aex. Hence, from my fight, and thank my dear Statira, That yet thou art alive.

Rox. Oh, take me to your arms. In spight of all your cruelty, I love you: Yes, thus I'll fasten on your sacred robe; Thus, on my knees, for ever cling around thee, Till you forgive me, or till death divide us.

Alex. Hence, fury, hence : there's not a glance of thine

But, like a bafilifk, comes wing'd with death. Rox. Oh, speak not thus, to one who kneels for mercy.

Think for whose fake it was I madly plung'd Into a crime abhorrent to my nature. Alex. Off, murd'refs, off! for ever thun my fight; My eyes deteft thee, for thy faul is ruin.

Rox. Barbarian! yes, I will for ever shun thee. Repeated injuries have steel'd my heart, And I cou'd curfe myfelf for being kind. If there is any majesty above, That has revenge in store for perjur'd love, Send, heav'n, the swiftest ruin on his head ! Strike the destroyer! lay the victor dead! Kill the-

But what are curses? Curses will not kill, Nor ease the tortures, I am doom'd to feel.

Alex. Oh, my fair star, I shall be shortly with thee ! What means this deadly dew upon my forehead?

My heart too heaves. Caf. The poison works!

Eum Pardon, dread Sir, a fatal meffenger, The royal Syfigambis is no more. Struck with the horror of Statira's fate, She foon expir'd, and, with her lateft breath, left Parifatis to Lyfimachus. But what I fear moft deeply will affect you, Your lov'd Hepheffion's Alex. Dead ! then he is bleft! But here, here lies my fate. Hephestion, Clytus !

Ros. Behold the wretch, who, desperate of thy My victories all for ever folded up In this dear body. Here my be My standard's triumphs gone. Here my banner's loft,

Oh, when shall I be mad! give orders to The army that they break their shields, Iwards, Spears,

Pound their bright armour into duft-Away. Is there not cause to put the world in mourning? Burn all the spires, that seem to meet the sky, Beat down the battlements of every city; And, for the monument of this lov'd creature, Root up these bowers, and pave 'em all with gold. Draw dry the Gances, make the Indies poor, To deck her tomb : no fbrine nor altar fpare, But ftrip the pomp from gods to place it there. [Exit. Enter Theffalus.

Cof. He's gone-but whither ?- follow, Theffalus, Attend his steps, and let me know what passes.

Vengeance, lie fill, thy cravings shall be fated, Death roams at large, the furies are unchain'd,

And murder plays her mighty mafter-piece.

Enter Polyperchon, Theffalus, and Philip.

Phil. Saw you the king?

Pol. Yes; with diforder'd wildhefa in his looks.

He rush'd along, till, with a casual glance, He faw me where I flood : then depping hart, Draw near, he cry'd-and grafp'd my hand in his, Where more than fevers rag'd in ev'ry vein. Oh, Polyperchon! I have lost my queen! Scatira's dead!-and, as he spoke, the tears

Gush'd from his eyes—I more than felt his pains.

Thess. Hence, hence, away!

Cass. Where is he, Thessalus?

Thess. I left him circled by a crowd of princes. The po fon tears him with that height of horror, E'en I cou'd pity him-he call'd the chiefs; Embrac'd 'em round-then, starting from amidst 'em,

Cried out, I come-twas Ammon's voice-I know it-

Father, I come; but, let me, ere I go, Dispatch the business of a kneeling world,

Pol. No more; I hear him-we must meet anon. Coff. In Saturn's field-there give a loofe to Enjoy the tempest we, ourselves, have rais'd, And triumph in the wreck which crowns our ven-Excunt.

SCENE, the Palace. Alexander, with bis Hair dishevelled, Lysimachus, Eumenes, Perdiccas and Attendants. Alexander discovered. Alex. Search there; nay, probe me, fearch my Pull, draw it out. wounded reins-

Lyf We have fearch'd, but find no hurt. Alex. Oh, 1 am shot, a forked burning arrow Sticks crofs my shoulders: the fad venom flies Like lightning thro' my flesh, my blood, my marrow.

Lyf. How fierce his fever!
Alex. Ha! what a change of torments I endure! A bolt of ice runs hiffing through my bowels; Tis fure, the arm of death; give me a chair; Cover me, for I freeze, and my teeth chatter, And my knees knock together.

Eum. Have mercy, Heav'n! Alex. I burn, I burn again; The war grows wond'rous hot; hey for the Tygris! Bear me, Bucephalus, amongst the billows.

Oh, 'tis a noble beaft; I wou'd not change him For the best horse the fun has in his stable;

For they are hot, their mangers full of coals; Their mains are flakes of lightning, curls of fires; And their red tails like meteors whilk about.

Lyf. Help, all-Eumenes, help.
Alex. Ha, ha, ha! I shall die with laughter .-Parmenio—Clytus, do you see yon fellow, That ragged soldier, that poor tatter'd Greek? See how he puts to flight the gaudy Persians, With nothing but a rufty helmet on, through which The grifly britles of his pushing beard Drive em like pikes—ha! ha! ha!

Per. How wild he talks!

Lys. Yet warring in his wildness,

Alex: Sound, sound, keep your ranks close; ay,

now they come; Oh, the brave din, the noble clank of arms! Charge, charge apace, and let the phalanx move: Darius comes—ay, 'tis Darius; I fee, I know him by the sparkling plumes, And his gold chariot drawn by ten white horses. But, like a tempest, thus I pour upon him-He bleeds; with that last blow I brought him down: He tambles, take him, fnatch the imperial crown. They fly, they fly; follow, follow-Victoria, Victoria, Victoria

Per. Let's bear him foftly to his bed. Alex. Hold, the least motion gives me sudden

My vital spirits are quite parch'd, burnt up, And all my smoaky entrails turn'd to ashes. Lys. When you, the brightest star that ever shone,

The track of the control of the cont

to or a knowledge worth,

lot server suglewest from 5184, 500 approved standard standard and very a decided and the control of th

And the mer to be and the place, as blood, as not prove

Alor, I turn, I binderental property the the Thanks

The energy Superfection and the best state of the color.

Oh, the winder branks I was a not allowed blim

d being at the but thing chaugh my sawell ! games a surgery prince to one off great in Course and Joy I was and the earth chatters.

And the Arest Marick Sognifices.

Keep Plate worth Marie 44

C. C. W. W. P. P. P. Marie.

S. W. W. P. William Co. . In Consuchers.

Performance St. J. Street Co. . Millianters.

to the court of the dry or deserted

Shall fet, it must be night with us for ever. Aiex. Let me embrace you all, before I die-

[All kneel and weep, Weep not, my dear companions, the good gods Shall fend ye, in my ffead, a nobler prince; One that shall lead ye forth with metchless conduct, Lyf. Break not our hearts with fuch unkind expressions.

Per. We will not part with you, nor change for Alex. Perdicces, take this ring, [Mars. And fee me laid in the temple of Jupiter Ammon. Lyf. To whom does your dread majefty bequeath The empire of the world?

Alex. To him that is most worthy. Per. When will you, facred Sir, that we fhould give To your great memory those divine honours Which such exalted virtue does deserve? Alex. When you are all most happy, and in peace. Your hands—Oh, father, if I have discharg'd The duty of a man to empire born; If by unwearied toil I have defery'd The vast renown of thy adopted son, Accept this foul which thou did it first inspire, And which this figh thus gives thee back again, Lyf. There fell the pride and glory of the war. If there be treason, let us find it out; Lyamachus stands forth to lead you on And fwears, by these most honour'd, dear remains, He will not tafte those joys which beauty brings, Until he has reveng'd the best of kings.

the selection of the se thin me kind brief & I thinke who will D. W.

why DP principal to be

this in all yet tropped the classical

Stat s'espect to solve

ALTO THE (not for the proper adjust a le

Trans Charles of the court with the the west to be the

their while it

t make of theelly w

a preserved to some source of stage

. Harris of the love Konney Sens

This posts got a tree und AND SHARE WELL HAD BEEN THE descent of wise did we open on it to have specify to ach ser should be

[Excunt.

55¹

, what are my land the helicon, Clyton 14 for the ben'him he has he has heart,